For the Price of an Evening Paper

Robbery in the very next block . . . silverware, jewelry taken while the family was away. A light left burning on the porch, in the house, in the side yard would have made the burglar's work less easy. And would have cost no more than the paper that tells about the burglary.

"Electricity is CHEAP . . . . . Use More of It"

In Central-Southern California electricity is particularly cheap, because Edison partners are California people, glad to share their profits with their neighbors. When "Edison" builds a great steam power plant at Long Beach to make sure its customers will never lack for electricity, even in the driest years . . . and when it learns there to get twice as much power out of a barrel of oil than was extracted only seven years ago, it doesn't put this extra profit into its own pocket, but passes it on to its 400,000 patrons, 118,000 of whom also are partners.

A BASKET CHAIR FOR THE GARDEN, PORCH OR TERRACE

Coolness and comfort are desirable attributes on warm summer days. Especially in this so on particularly sultry days when anything that creates such an illusion is welcome.

The chair illustrated in the sketch shown above is made of stick willow and by its very simplicity of line creates the necessary cooling effect. It is modernistic in design and finished in orange lacquer. The upholstered seat may be made of a heavy hand blocked material in tan and brown tones or of an appropriate, solid colored, ohints. The small table shown to the right of the chair above is a good choice, because it, like the chair, is light and cool-looking. It may be painted tan outside and brown on the inner side, or in one color that will harmonize with the chair or the spot surrounding it.

THE DIVISION AND PROPAGATION OF IRIS

Now is the time of year to divide Iris roots so that they may be replanted early enough to make sufficient root growth to enable them to remain undisturbed by winter freezing and thawing. The diagram shows graphically how this division is best accomplished. Dig up your old clumps of Iris and pull them apart by hand. If it is a variety that is common, or one of which you have a good many, divide at points similar to that marked at on the sketch; but if it is a rare and expensive kind, or one of which you wish to have more, divide at such points as are indicated by the letter B. Any drying out is fatal to Iris roots, so have the bed to which the divisions are to be moved in readiness and plant immediately. There are several fungus diseases to which Iris are prone and it is often advantageous before planting to dust the roots, lightly with flowers of sulphur which acts as a disinfectant. In planting remember that Iris enjoy the warmth of the sun on their roots so plant shallow but be sure that the fibrous roots are spread out and not cramped.
